Chehalem Meet Draws Large Crowd

by Charlie Helm

Around 100 swimmers attended the Chehalem SCY meet in Newberg on January 28th, which was the largest turnout yet for this meet. Speculation on the large turnout varied from We haven't had a meet for a while, It's a nice pool with great hosts, It's time to start working towards Associations, to my ending my self-imposed ban on trash talking for 2012 until this meet. A wide variety in age groups attending made this an enjoyable and a very competitive day. The young U of O Masters team showed up in full force, making it “hard to not hit a Duck swimmer” in the warm up lanes, according to several competitors. Colombia Gorge Masters also had an enthusiastic group that made the trip as well, and were seen cheering each other on throughout the day. The “COMA Guys” Mike and George were a little more laid back on deck but had some great swims in the water.

Speaking of great swims, there were nine new Oregon records set plus one Zone record set in a relay. Colette Crabbe decided this was a good day to set some new records, so she had four new Oregon records to add to her collection for her age group. Michael Baele set two records of his own, and David Hathaway set a record in his favorite event, the 200 fly. The team of MJ Caswell, Terri Tynismaa, Ann Goodman, and Valerie Jenkins set a new Oregon record in the women 45-54 400 Yard Free Relay. Not to be outdone, Joy Ward, Ginger Pierson, Colette Crabbe, and Kathleen Buck decided to set an Oregon and a Zone record in the Women 55-64 400 Yard Medley Relay. So who says you can't have fast swims in these small town pools?! Several swimmers also commented on setting some new personal records as well. Another enjoyable meet in Newberg to start off the 2012 season!

Chair's Corner

April 13 – 15 are the dates of this year's Association Meet. The meet will be held for the first time in Hood River. The team and organizing committee have been working really hard to make this event an experience you will enjoy and remember. I hope you're planning to attend.

On Saturday, at 5:00, will be the OMS Annual Meeting in which OMS members are encouraged to attend and participate. The meeting will only be an hour, at the most. This is a great opportunity for the board to hear from the membership their ideas, suggestions, concerns, questions, comments, etc. It is also our opportunity to share with the membership what we've been working on as well as present some of the short and long term goals and plans we have been discussing. Please plan to attend the meeting as your input is very important to your Board of Directors.

Quote of the month:

"Mainly, I like to have fun. Swimming is all about having fun, and I am a firm believer that you should keep swimming as long as you are having fun, but I can say that it becomes much more fun as you get older and learn more about the sport, life, and especially more about yourself!" Scott Goldblatt

2012 USMS Spring Nationals

Online entry for the 2012 USMS Spring National Championship is now open. Online entries received by March 9 will receive a $10 discount on their entry fee, so be sure to enter early. The final entry deadline is March 23. Spring Nationals will be held in Greensboro, N.C. from April 26-29.

They will be held in the country's newest major aquatic center, the Greensboro Aquatic Center. The 80,000 square-foot, 2500-seat state-of-the-art Greensboro Aquatic Center features three pools including a 50-meter double-bulkhead competition pool, full diving well and tower, and instructional pool. Spring Nationals are expected to be run in two adjacent 10-lane courses in the competition pool. The competition pool is very fast, more than 9' deep throughout. The diving well and instructional pool provide an additional 12 lanes of warmup and warmdown space.

Off the Block

In the February, 2012, Aqua Master, Kathy talked about roadblocks that happen in our lives when we try to start our lives right each new year. Here she continues on how to overcome those roadblocks.

Overcoming the Inevitable Roadblocks to Success

by Katie Irwin

I wrote about starting the New Year off right with some SMART goals. As a reminder, SMART goals are Specific, Measurable, Adjustable, Realistic and Time-based. By following this acronym when setting goals, you are setting yourself up for success. Many people tend to stop working on their resolutions after just a few months of hard work. This year, however, is going to be different. We are going to set effective goals that will be achieved!

So now that you have had some time to start working on your own goals, how have they been going? What have you been doing well? What has been challenging? It's important to reflect on your goals as you strive to achieve them. There are times when we need to make a few adjustments along the way, so by checking on your own progress, you can monitor what needs to be done. Remember to keep a goal progress journal to assist you during this process. It is a rewarding experience to be able to go back and read about your journey. During this journey of working towards your long-term goal, you may encounter various roadblocks along the way.

How to Keep Moving Forward

One of the major roadblocks that you may encounter when goal setting is that you're trying to embark down this path on your own. You may be embarrassed to share your goals with your coach, teammates, friends or family, so you keep them to yourself. It may be that you feel safer if no one else is involved. However, people who support you are crucial when making any type of change. They can offer encouragement, motivation and accountability. They can even help you out during grueling workouts or at meets.

Think about whom you want to include in your support system. Choose people who will be positive—you'll need this positive reinforcement when things get tough. Also consider checking in with them on a regular basis so you can show them all the progress you're making. By having someone to share your progress with, it will help you stay motivated to keep up the hard work in and out of the pool.

Another roadblock that many people encounter is that life inevitably gets in the way. How many times have you been cruising along with your goals and then something happens and it throws you off your path? Just the other day, I was hit with an awful cold that left me out of the pool for about a week and left my body feeling completely worn out. It was such a challenge to get back into the pool and make up for lost time.

To help ensure that you stay on track, think of some things that make it difficult to achieve your goals. Does your work schedule change regularly? Do you have children? A busy social life? There are countless things that can get in the way of making a change in your life.

Make a list of these challenges on the left side of a piece of paper. Then, adjacent to each challenge, on the right, make a list of things that will help you overcome them. For example, if you have "Sometimes I am too tired to get to practice after a full day at work" in the left column, you could put "I will go to morning practice, which will help me jump start my day" in the right column.

By creating a list, you will be better prepared to overcome the various challenges. Try to remember the

Where a 5th Place Ribbon Is Like a Gold Medal

Trainer Helen Thurlow

I had a hearing impaired student in my yoga class last summer. Great kid, infectious laugh and ready to start the school year. He was ready to start his senior year and he was in my class to learn how to become more flexible so he can become a better athlete in school. His sports: track and field, basketball and bowling. His biggest goal, however, was to compete in the Special Olympics and win a medal.

I loved working with him and throughout the course he became an excellent yoga student. Out of all the students in that class, he was the best student; even his inclusion specialist was impressed that he was able to transform himself in the poses of downward dog, pigeon, to an awesome handstand. He had such grace about him that I forgot that he could not hear.

I recently checked out the Special Olympics web-site (www.soor.org) and was simply amazed how well organized and thoughtful it was. They really take care of their athletes. A great new program they have for aspiring athletes is the Healthy Athletes Program; a program that enables the athletes to stay healthy so they can improve their skills and compete in their events. They offer free health screenings in vision, dental, hearing, fitness, and health education and sports physicals.

If someone chooses to take the fitness screening, they are tested on flexibility, strength, endurance, and balance. They are then provided with a written summary of their results and are given a home exercise program based on those results. The goal is to motivate them to have an active lifestyle and to continue to participate in their sporting events.

These tests are similar evaluations that personal trainers or physical therapists give to their clients. I love it. The best thing I love about this organization is the way they help the athletes to be self-sufficient in their chosen sport. Check out the aquatic section; the events range from developmental events (10m assisted swim and 25m flotation), crossover events (a 15m unassisted swim) this allows the swimmer to progress from the developmental events to the traditional events. The traditional events include all 4 competitive strokes from 25m to 200m (no 200 fly), including IM events and relay events.

My yoga student has been giving updates on his training. He's completely stoked and feels he will medal this summer. I asked him if he had ever tried the swimming events and he said yes, but didn't like it. I asked him why and he stated he got a 5th place ribbon and it was pink. He doesn't like pink, but his little sister does and so he gave the ribbon to her. She thought she won a gold medal.

If you live outside of Multnomah County check out the web-site: www.soor.org 2012 State Games will be held in Newberg, July 14-15. Nationals will be held in New Jersey, 2014.

Matt Montgomery has limited speech, which makes it hard for him to participate in his community. Special Olympics events give him the acceptance he deserves.

Shake and Swim with “Bake”

Into the Tumble, Again?

Coach Dennis Baker

I have written many articles about the Freestyle flip turn. Recently, I have noticed a lot of swimmers doing the flip turn incorrectly which always spurs me on to write an article. Australian swimming has many unique terms that we in the USA never use. One such term is “The Tumble”. The Tumble is what we call Freestyle flip turn. Let’s change our visualization from a “Flip Turn” into a “Tumble Turn”. OK, ready? Here are some tips and drills to help us with our new “Tumble Turn”.

When you do a “Tumble” or “Somersault” you keep your knees close to your chin and heels near your rear end. I constantly see swimmers get halfway around their flip turn and open up the body and extend the legs to the wall too soon. When you do this you take your body out of a powerful push off position. So now, you are upside down on your back with your feet on the wall and almost fully extended and the knees are barely bent. This is not a great power push off position! Often times this also creates a slapping effect with the feet on the wall because your legs are accelerating too fast after coming out of the tuck too soon.

Remember, it’s not how fast you can whip your feet around to the wall but how you place your feet solidly and bend the knees. Take a look at Michael Phelps or Ryan Lochte “underwater flip turns” on YouTube. What you will see is a controlled tight flip or tumble, great knee bend and a great push off. What they do after that is a topic for another article.

Let’s summarize into a series of thoughts going into the wall for your new “Tumble Turn”.

- * Get closer to the wall, stay tightly tucked longer.
- * Take time to place feet on wall, not slap them.
- * Let your body absorb into the wall and bend the knees a little more.
- * Hands come together above your head for a streamline push-off.

Here are a couple of drills to help you on your way to the “Tumble”. First, just go to the deep end and do some tightly tucked somersaults. Take a little break after each one so you don’t get dizzy! Make sure you flip all of the way around. After 10 of these go directly to the wall and try a flip turn.

Secondly, do a flip turn and when your feet hit the wall stop underwater and get your hands above your head. Scull with your hands and count to three. Bend the knees while you are sculling and then push off. Do this 10 times then go back and try a normal flip turn.

Try these tips and use the imagery. Try these drills and you will be well on your way to a great “Tumble Turn”.

Coach Bob Bruce

Why Is COMA Hosting “Wonderful Water Weekend” in May?

by Bob Bruce, COMA Head Coach & Event Director

What is “Wonderful Water Weekend?” What do those crazies up in the mountains have for us this spring? Here is the story of one man’s odyssey to breathe some new swimming excitement into your lives.

This adventure began last summer when I noted that the FINA World Championships were slated for June and the USMS Long Course Championships were scheduled for Omaha in July, one week after the U.S. Olympic trials held in the same awesome pool. As COMA Event Director, I asked myself, what are we going to do in Oregon to promote these unique opportunities and how can I help? The immediate and obvious answer was to host a long course meet one month after the Association Championships, to help swimmers make the competitive jump from short course to long course and pick up some seed times along the way. Done!

This meet is scheduled at the 50-meter pool at Juniper Swim & Fitness Center in Bend, the same pool at which COMA has hosted previous Association Championships and our annual All-Around Challenge Meet. The meet will run on Saturday afternoon, so that swimmers driving to the meet may travel that morning and return at night if they wish. The meet will include 16 of the possible 17 individual events (sorry milers, no 1500). This will be your last chance to get long course seed times locally for Omaha. And, loving multi-stroke swimming challenges as I do, I carefully prepared an order of events that allows swimmers to tackle pentathlon challenges if they choose, without lumping all of the single-stroke events and IMs. We’ll give special awards to those who complete an official five-event pentathlon. As extra incentive, I note that the Oregon Pentathlon record book has a lot of holes.

But the long history of Masters meets in Bend suggests that folks from the Metro area are often reticent to travel to Bend for a single-day swim meet. So my next thought was, what can I add to the weekend to increase value for those who might travel to only a one-day event reluctantly? As OMS Long Distance Chair, I’ve always wanted to try a pool meet one weekend day and an open water event the other day nearby. Perhaps this was the chance. OK, Elk Lake was out, still being a cross-country ski paradise in early May. Flash! I came up with a unique alternative, an open water event in the pool! Done!

The open water swim is scheduled for Sunday morning at the 50-meter pool at JSFC, hereafter to be known fondly as “Lake Juniper.” The swim will be 1200 meters, to be run as twelve 100-meter loops around buoys. Naturally, we’ll remove the lane lines, but so far I have resisted the temptation to drop the pool level to get waves. We’ll run the swim in small seeded heats to manage crowding. This will be a great kick-off to the Oregon Open Water Series (the earliest ever), a fine opportunity to dust off those open water skills, and a wonderful chance to race. In fact, this swim might be the most strategically and technically challenging race of the open water season. To my knowledge, this will be the first USMS-sanctioned open water swim ever held in a pool, and the first ever to be held indoors (the removable roof at JSFC will still be up)—history in the making!

So far, so good. But believing that ‘excess is not enough’, I continued my quest for value. What if I added an open water clinic? Surely we need them, and I teach several of them every spring anyway. Done! The basic open water clinic will run on Sat-

A large flock of DUCKS at the Chalehem SCY Meet

Association Champs ... Don't Miss it in Hood River!

by Sandi Rousseau

Columbia Gorge Masters is a first time host for the Oregon Masters Swimming Association Championships on April 13-15, 2012, and we are looking forward to welcoming you all to Hood River. If you have never seen the Hood River Valley in blossom, it is exquisitely beautiful and this might be your chance! Of course, we do need to warn you that if the Spring is a cold one as in 2011, there was not a blossom in sight at the time of Blossom Fest (which in 2012 is the weekend of April 21-22).

We will be swimming short course meters instead of yards as in most Association champs, so we will have seven lanes of competition with mostly deepish water in all lanes, and three lanes for warm-up/warm-down. There is also a warming pool that is 10 degrees warmer than the competition pool to warm your bones!

Banquet: We encourage you all to sign up for the banquet, as it is going to be superb. It will be located in the historic Hood River Hotel in downtown Hood River (5 minutes from the pool) and catered by Blossoms Catering. They are known for their great food and the menu is as follows:

- * Caesar Salad-pecorino romano, smoked bacon, garlic crouton, creamy lemon dressing
- * Polenta & Chicken Sausage Ragù-onions, peppers, mushrooms, pecorino, tomato sauce
- * Cornerstone Mac N Cheese-cheddar, pecorino, provolone, garlic cream
- * Grilled Seasonal Vegetables with Romesco Sauce
- * Artisan Bread
- * Seasonal Fruit Crisp with Vanilla Ice Cream

Banquet Speaker: Our banquet speaker will be Dr. Christopher Van Tilburg from the Crag Rats, a local volunteer search and rescue organization and the oldest search and rescue organization in the United States. The Crag Rats are involved in multiple rescues every year in Hood River County which includes Mt. Hood and the Columbia River Gorge. Chris' talk is titled 'Anatomy of a Search' and will include photos from about 20 local rescues. It will focus on the culture of volunteering as well as risk and responsibility. It's a fun talk and motivational too. (See brief description of talk and biography on pages 16-17.)

Silent Auction: As an added bonus for this meet, there will also be a silent auction that takes place during the meet. The items will include local products of all kinds remember our local fruits, coffees, brews, and wines? They will be well represented. You will be able to bid on items until Sunday at noon.

Shortt Supply Swim Supplies: Shortt Supply is our local swimwear vendor and will be on site during the meet Saturday and Sunday to provide for your needs. So plan to shop during the meet.

Activities of Interest in the Gorge

The weekend of April 13-15, 2012, has two special events taking place in the Hood River area, so you might want to bring your spouse or significant other to try out the following:

Columbia Gorge Wineries Passport Weekend: More than thirty Columbia Gorge Wineries will be hosting open houses featuring specials released, great discounts, and more. Passports are $15 each and provide special offers for Passport holders (a $5 to $800 value in potential savings). You may purchase passports at www.columbiagorgewine.com.

Local Artists: Twenty-five local artists in Hood River, Mosier, The Dalles, and White Salmon open their studios to show their working environments. You'll see furniture, glass, fiber, pastels, oils, watercolors, photography, cloisonné enamel, mixed media, and ceramics. You may purchase an event map for $10 and more information is available at <http://gorgeartistsopenstudios.blogspot.com>.

TEAM SCORING: Only teams registered by March 30, 2012, will be able to score points. There will be three team categories (Small, Medium and Large) based upon the number of swimmers entered in the meet for each team. There will be a meeting of all the team representatives on Saturday, April 14, 2012, at 8:45 AM to vote on the breakdown of the teams into these three categories. Swimmers from LMSCs outside of Oregon are allowed to enter but are not scored in the team competition. Full team names and their abbreviations are listed below. Someone from your team must register your team for 2012.

The team registration form is on the OMS website. Please make sure your team is registered.

As of February 1, the following teams were registered for 2012:

Code	Name	Club	Code	Name	Club

What you write down on your entry form is your team designation for the meet and no exceptions will be allowed. If you leave this Local Team space blank you will be entered as representing the team listed on your 2012 USMS Registration for scoring purposes.

Team Awards: Awards for First, Second and Third Place will be awarded for each team category.
IF YOU HAVE ANY QUESTIONS ABOUT THE RULES AND GUIDELINES FOR THIS MEET, PLEASE CONTACT: Wes Edwards wesedwards.backstroker@comcast.net (503)460-7989.

OMS Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of Oregon Masters Swimming is scheduled for Saturday, April 14, 2012, at 5:00 PM at the Hood River Hotel, just prior to the annual awards banquet. The annual meeting is open to all OMS members, and is a great opportunity to voice your opinion on the issues you care about. You don't need an awards banquet ticket to attend the annual meeting.

At this meeting, the spotlight shines directly on the local teams as each team registered for 2012 is allowed one vote on any issues decided during the meeting. Only the Team Representative designated on the team's 2012 registration form or their assigned designee may vote on any issues. Your team's vote is very important. If your Team Representative is unable to attend, please help ensure that another team member is designated to vote on your behalf during the meeting.

Only those teams registered with OMS for 2012 are eligible to vote at the annual meeting. OMS teams NOT YET registered for 2012 are:

Code	Name	Club
AQDK	Aquaducks Masters	OREG
AST	Allstar Triathlon Club	OREG
BCAC	Northwest Blue Crush Aquatic Club	OREG
CBAT	Circumnavigating Beavers Aquatic Team	OREG
DUCK	University of Oregon Swim Club	DUCK
EA	Emerald Aquatics	OREG
LOM	Lake Oswego Masters	OREG
PCCM	Portland Community College Masters	OREG
PEND	Pendleton Masters Swim Club	OREG
PSM	Portland State Masters	OREG
SLSA	South Lane Swimmers Association	OREG
TCSO	Team Club Sport Oregon	OREG

Those teams listed above must submit a 2012 Team Registration Form found on the OMS website at: http://www.swimoregon.org/forms/membership/OMS_Local_Team_Reg.pdf.

Submit the completed form to Christina Fox at foxkohnert@peak.org prior to this year's annual meeting.

The OMS Board needs your participation and your voice at the annual meeting so they can continue to effectively serve and plan for the future. Please join us! Questions? Please contact Wes Edwards at wesedwards.backstroker@comcast.net urday morning. I'll teach the basics—swimming in crowds, swimming in a straight line, navigating, drafting, & rounding buoys—and aim it at folks with little or no experience, although it would be a great review for anyone. And I'll run it so that it might serve as a nice warm-up for the pool meet.

And no COMA event is ever complete without a social with food. After all, we're swimmers! How about a pancake breakfast after the open water swim on Sunday? Done! Yum!

So Wonderful Water Weekend—May 12-13, 2012—has grown to four parts, in order...

- ⌘ A basic open water clinic (limited to 30 swimmers please) on Saturday morning

- ⌘ A long course swim meet with lots of events in a nice pool
- ⌘ A pool open water swim on Sunday morning
- ⌘ A pancake breakfast on Sunday morning after the open water event.

Does this sound attractive? If so, be there! We're doing this for YOU! Alas, because OMS organizes pool meets and open water swims differently, there are two entry forms. Sorry, it is what it is. You can find full event information, all on-line and mail-in entry forms, and some other interesting & pertinent other stuff on the COMA website, www.comaswim.org.

Good luck and good swimming!

Oh, The Places You'll Go!

by Maria Elias-Williams

"Oh, The Places You'll Go!" is one of my favorite books from long ago. Someone gave it to me when I was embarking on (one of) my career(s)! If you haven't read it, you must. Yes, it is by Dr. Seuss. And although I consider myself an avid reader, this is a very deep book.

I think I may need to write a sequel for new or potential members, called "Oh, The Masters Swimmers You'll Meet!"

I have met fast swimmers and slow swimmers. Young bucks and old farts. People I absolutely adore—and some with whom I probably will not spend a lot of time. Olympians and folks who just needed to lose some weight. Gay and Lesbian, big and small, and swimmers of every color.

I don't think I have ever met a Masters swimmer who has not bid me "good luck." Nor have I ever been unable to find someone to count for me in the 1500, long after everyone else has gone home, because I am in the last heat. I know that if my cap rips or my goggles snap, I can always turn to the swimmer behind me and borrow whatever I need.

I have teammates that have donated food, clothing, time—whatever it is that another swimmer has requested for his or her respective "cause." I have teammates that have packed and moved other members when life changes. I have teammates that have sat with me through medical issues with my child—not because I "needed" anything—but "just in case."

Where else in your daily life can you find folks like this? Ones that never notice when you gain weight but are the first to say, "Wow, you look great!" when you lose weight? Ones that won't notice that you can't quite make your best times but are thrilled you have been showing up to practice for the past two weeks? Ones that will take care of you when you are sick, no matter how minimal the cold or how great the cancer?

I love Masters swimmers. I recently attended an out of town meeting and swam with a local team that insisted on taking me out to dinner because "the city was no place for a single woman on a Friday night." We had a blast. I can't wait to head back there!

Enjoy your team. I used to swim alone and do a lot more yardage than I now do. I swim with a team now. And I swim a lot faster than I did before. And I have a lot more fun.

Anatomy Of A Search

Lessons in risk, responsibility and resources from mountain rescue Christopher Van Tilburg, M.D.

Editor, Wilderness Medicine
 Medical Committee Member, Mountain Rescue Association
 Staff Physician, Mountain Clinic, Mount Hood Meadows, Oregon
 Author, Mountain Rescue Doctor: Wilderness Medicine in the Extremes of Nature
 Hood River, Oregon

When Dr. Van Tilburg received a page on December 9, 2006, to respond to Oregon’s Mount Hood, little did he know that he’d be involved in one of the largest search and rescue missions in the United States. His team, Hood River Crag Rats, the oldest mountain rescue unit in the U.S., spearheaded the ten-day search, battling five feet of new snow, gargantuan crevasses, 100 mph winds, single-digit temperatures, and extreme avalanche danger.

Dr. Van Tilburg describes the search first hand and shows exclusive images of the search operations based out of the 120-year-old Cloud Cap Inn, the advanced search base perched at 6,000 feet on Mount Hood’s rugged and remote North Side. Dr. Van Tilburg recounts the history of the Crag Rats, starting with their initial rescue in 1927. He highlights canyon rope rescues in the Columbia River Gorge, advance life support in the Mount Hood National Forest and body recoveries on Mount Adams, in Washington.

Along the way, Dr. Van Tilburg describes prominent controversies: What is the risk of climbing mountains and adventure sports? Who should pay for search and rescue? And who is ultimately responsible?

reason why you set your goals. If this is something that is truly important to you, you should make it an important part of your daily routine.

Working on your goals may not always be the easiest journey, but the end results can be very rewarding. Instead of letting your goals fall to the wayside, be proactive about getting them accomplished. Have fun along the way and be sure to celebrate all of your successes!

Swimmer Spotlight

by Tim Lunney

Name: Michael Carew, Age 62
Occupation: Retired teacher
Local Team: Central Oregon Masters Aquatics, (COMA)

If swimming were baseball, Mike Carew would be in the All Star game. Not only has he received the Oregon Outstanding Open Water award for 2011, he is well on his way to swimming over 1000 miles for the third year straight.

"Right now I am going for as much distance per stroke as I can get. I am swimming faster than I did 27 years ago." He attributes this to being eighty pounds lighter.

"I am reaching places I never knew I had and places I had forgotten about. It feels like it did when I once swam out at Eel lake and the mist had rolled in off the ocean when I was out towards the middle. The water flattened out like glass and the quiet was overwhelming. Sometimes there was a glimpse of something in the distance through the fog. I would stop, clear my goggles and try to get a bearing on anything, but it was hard to navigate but I could tell there was something out there just past where I could see, so I would swim some more in its general direction and then I thought I could hear something. I stopped and listened; again, just the quite, but would swim and I could almost hear it again. Whatever was out there was making me chase it- making me reach for it and I have not stopped since. I am thinner now but I am still in that in-between , suspended, misted-over, swimming dream world that I found out on the coast. I am not sure what was out there but I am glad it talked me into chasing it. It's leading me somewhere."

Future events on Mike's calendar include Applegate 10k, Trans Tahoe, Waikiki and Maui channel swims and he is ready to load up and do them today. He qualified for an Oregon Masters patch for completing the 5k and 10k long course swims as well as the 3000 and 6000 swims and 21 open water swims in one season.

"I am on track to make the 1000 miles but will have to rally to do it. I suppose I am in the top of the seventh and will have to work my way to the game's end. I may be swimming on New Year's Eve to get it all in. It would not be the first time I wore my suit inside out."

Swimsuits: A Short Walk Down Memory Lane

by Stacey Kiefer, Adolph Kiefer & Associates

As swim seasons come and go, and what we use at the pool changes with fads and new rules, we often narrow our focus to the latest and greatest and forget about awesome (and maybe less awesome) products from the past. With technology at its peak, perhaps it's time to blast to the past and revisit some of our favorite old swimsuits.

Today's tech suits are being made using thicker and tighter compression fabrics, but who can forget about some of the original tech suits presented by Adidas; a full body, front zipper almost loose-fitting lycra suit probably more adequate for sun coverage than racing. These were certainly eye catchers in Adidas' classic navy and bright yellow stripe design.

Certainly Adidas didn't have the only flashy suit. Well before the days of full-body suits, Speedo ruled the pizzazz market. Possibly the shiniest of suits were the Speedo holograms. From just small sections of lycra suits showing the hologram design to full coverage, almost rubbery hologram suits (S2000 suits, aka "cat suit") made everyone look like a mirror on the deck. And if you were a fan of it then, get ready because one of Speedo's 2012 Team USA prints will feature a bit of shine ("Home of the Fast").

Most similar to some of today's tech suits were the racing suits known as paper suits. Introduced in a conservative cut and only available in black and navy, these suits quickly became popular as the "french cut," i.e. skimpy cuts made their way to the pool. Naturally printed paper suits also had their fair share of play, featuring colorful dot and bubble prints, some of which I still possess.

But sometimes it's the story behind the suit that truly makes it a memory, like the Batman-looking Arena Strush SR competition suit that used NASA-developed panels (often featured in bright gold) to reduce water resistance. Also space-inspired were the TYR Aqua Shift Tripwire technology suits, some silver in color with uranium finish, which were originally paired with the Aqua Band sleeves to increase hydrodynamics with compression.

Even the advertising used can make greatness out of your average training suit, like the catalog picture of Gary Hall Jr. shown golfing while wearing a men's flower print Victor brand suit. So the next time you gleefully stride across the deck in what you think is the latest and greatest swimsuit, just keep in mind that you may be making memories for someone else.
